DIRECTOR

Director

Brian Trenchard Smith

Brian Trenchard-Smith, Director

Brian Trenchard-Smith is an Anglo Australian film and television director, producer, and writer, with a reputation for large scale movies on small scale budgets, many of which display a quirky sense of humor that has earned him a cult following. Quentin Tarantino referred to him in Entertainment Weekly as one of his favorite directors. His early work is featured in Not Quite Hollywood, an award winning documentary to be released by Magnolia in August.

Among his early successes were the 20th Century Fox release The Man from Hong Kong, a wry James Bond/Chop Sockey cocktail, the Vietnam battle movie Siege of Firebase Gloria, and the futuristic satire Dead End Drive-In, a particular Tarantino favorite. BMX Bandits, showcasing a 15-year old Nicole Kidman, and Miramax's The Quest, starring ET's Henry Thomas, won prizes at children's film festivals in Montreal and Europe. He has also directed 35 episodes of television series as diverse as Silk Stalkings, Time Trax, The Others, and Flipper.

Born in England, where his Australian father was in the RAF, Trenchard-Smith attended UK's prestigious Wellington College, where he neglected studies in favor of acting and making short films, before migrating to Australia. " I had a desire to see the land of my father," he states, " also Australia at that time had no film industry, just three television networks which produced little drama. I was lucky to be at the right place at the right time". He started as a film editor, then graduated to network promos before he became one of a group of young people that, as he recalls, "pushed, shoved, lobbied and bullied the government into introducing investment for Australian made films."

He started as a film editor, then graduated to network promos before he became one of a group of young people that, as he recalls, "pushed, shoved, lobbied and bullied the government into introducing investment for Australian made films."

He persuaded Australia's largest distribution-exhibition circuit at the time, the Greater Union Theater Organization, to form an in-house production company that he would run. They made three successful films and his career was underway. In parallel careers, he was also founding editor of Australia's quarterly Movie magazine for 6 years, and has made over 100 trailers for other directors in Australia, UK, and America. Among his 37 movies, 5 were commissioned by Showtime, including the remake of the World War II classic, Sahara, the highly rated, Happy Face Murders, starring Ann-Margret, and DC 9/11: Time of Crisis, with Timothy Bottoms as President Bush.

His frequently repeated family drama for Lifetime Long Lost Son starring Gabrielle Anwar, introduced future Gossip Girl's Chace Crawford to audiences in the title role." I knew from his first scene, he was going to be hot." Trenchard-Smith has just completed Porky's - The College Years, a re-imagining of the famous 80's franchise of teen comedies. He is married to Byzantine historian Dr. Margaret Trenchard-Smith, lives in Los Angeles, and is a member of the British Academy of Film and Television Arts.

Synopsis

Love Under Pressure

Synopsis

Rachel, an African-American girl from the South Side of a major U.S. city attending a prestigious suburban high school under a false zip code in search of a better education, falls in love with Charlie, the school's white basketball star. Soon the reality of societal pressures become evident and ultimately takes a toll on their relationship. The color of their skin drives a wedge between them until they embrace and respect their differences and search for common ground, which ultimately enables them to be together.

Rachel inspires Charlie to leave the safe haven of his suburban neighborhood to visit her on the South Side of the city. Just as their love overcomes the hurdles of bigotry, the verdict of a police brutality trial is announced. Violence and anger explode onto the streets as riots begin. His life endangered, Charlie finds himself caught on the South Side of the city without a clear path to safety.
